

where we've been...

LAKESIDE GOLF CLUB

A sales meeting for us is a chance to dine out, socialise and hopefully get some work done. Actually one of the key factors in my venue decision is whether we can stay a long time without feeling uncomfortable for the intrusion. Clubs and pubs make for safe choices.

I chose Lakeside Golf Club and my decision was rewarded with spectacular food. Add to our brilliant meals, a gorgeous dining room with real atmosphere and a no rush attitude for our stay.

Lisa was first to arrive and secured a table next to the massive glass wall facing the golf course. I placed my laptop on the table and 'hot-spotted' from phone. Our worksheets were now live in front of us while we discussed the approaching 2023 Weddings & Functions Annual deadline over a glass of Philip Shaw 'The Gardener' Pinot Gris - this is how our meetings work.

After a while we decided to order lunch. Asian Spiced Pork Shoulder with Asian greens, sesame, vermicelli noodles and fried shallots got my attention and didn't let go. It was a lovely combination of flavours and a pretty healthy meal too. Heaps of broccoli!

Lisa chose Beer Battered Dory with chips, house salad and dill and lemon mayo, while Kirsty selected Grilled Atlantic Salmon with Parmesan baked polenta, spiced cauliflower and mint salsa verde.

I bet you don't hear too many people describe their sales meeting as wonderful. Ours was. Lovely food in an elegant setting with friendly easy going staff. We even got some work done too!