ROYAL CURRY HOUSE by Lisa

When a family night out for dinner is called for, we all love our local Indian restaurant, The Royal Curry House. Located on the corner of Camden Valley Way opposite McDonald's, The Royal Curry House is a family run restaurant with authentic ancestral recipes.

Sam and his lovely team provided the perfect table setting for our group of eight and the attentive service continued all evening. It took only a few minutes to place our orders, as being regulars, we all knew what we wanted. Our entrées arrived in no time and we couldn't wait to devour the cheesy garlic naan bread with various selections: Tasty Tandoori Prawns; Chicken Tikka; Ginger Lamb Chops; Onion Pakora Fritters with mint and tamarind chutney. The job of entree is to get your taste buds tingling. These were all winners!

Time for mains and The Royal Curry House's famous Butter Chicken was number one on the list for many of us. It's a family recipe handed down to Sam - and it's superb. One of the best I've ever had. I really could eat that and only that all night, but of course we had other dishes: Mild Lamb Korma in a delicate curry sauce with yogurt and almonds; Beef Madras - a medium curry with spiced vegetables and fresh tomatoes; their highly recommended Goat Curry.

There wasn't much conversation as we tucked in - reaching across the table for Papadums and pouring wine. Our entire family are huge fans of The Royal Curry House - whether takeaway or dining in. But it certainly does add to the experience when we can manage to come together and dine in at our favourite.
