BOHEMIAN EURO - Narellan tel. 4648 4211

I don't think many of you even know we have a German restaurant in Macarthur. I did, but I had never dined there. Situated in the old stretch of The Northern Road near Camden Valley Way which was detoured recently Bohemian attracts diners from across Sydney. Well anyway, I visited the German restaurant with Cat and Maggie late in Winter.

Despite the fact I was accompanied by two girls (and I do get called a girl quite regularly), this really is a big eater's restaurant. There was a table of a dozen '30 something' guys near us in the restaurant. Cat noticed that one of them had brought his baby in a pram. "Man!" I exclaimed, "he really wanted to come." This is a carbohydrate fest'. Big dishes, big servings... mostly meat, potato, vegies and sauces. You get the picture.

We had Cabbage Rolls and Dutch Croquettes for entrees. The diminutive Maggie ordered the biggest dish on the mains menu. The Pork Nuckle is massive! I went for the Rack of Lamb which owner and Chef Alan described as his 'Aussie dish'. Cat won in my opinion. Her Hungarian Goulash with Spaetzle was very tasty. I enjoyed a Czech beer called Bernard Amber. Yes it goes with my Skoda.

If you have travelled to Europe and want to relive the experience of German dining, Bohemian Euro is straight up authentic. If you are looking for an ethnic dining experience other than Thai or Italian, Bohemian Euro could also be the answer. But if you are just bloody hungry go straight to Bohemian Euro on the old bit of The Northern Road at Narellan. You know, beside Narellan Motor Inn.
